“ My deepest condolences to the Kaho family. Don was my trainer when I started working for Halliburton many, many years ago and I shadowed him for several weeks. He was so very kind and patient with me and taught me the safest and most efficient way to accomplish a job that was dangerous and demanding. No matter how many hours we had worked without going home, and at that time we were working extremely long hours, he was always cheerful and smiling. He was a pleasure to work with and I learned much more from him than just how to drive a truck and operate the equipment.
