“ I still remember coming to visit when you were born. On the day we were leaving to return home, we stopped by the Barnes house in La Grange on our way out and I got to hold you one last time before we hit the road. You were so little and I was excited because I hadn't held a baby since my brother was born the year before. You reached up and touched my face and I went home with a scratch on my cheek. I don't know why that memory stuck with me all these years, but it did. When we met the first time, you made sure I would never forget you.

You are one a one of a kind person, stylish, outspoken, silly, and independent. I'm so glad we grew up in the same circle. Cousins are our extra siblings. =) Here's to all the laughs we shared. I love you and I will see you again someday. Rest well, my friend.

I never met you, but I love you because you were my nephew. We all have to leave to take that exit, but I did not want you to go so soon. Rest in peace I hope you are with your dad.
