“ Kenny grew up across the street from my grandmother on Daisy St. His mother Bessie was my Grannys friend. Every summer when we visit, Kenny was our sitter while my Granny was at work. He was really funny, always had a story to tell. His easy-going kind hearted nature made you just like having him around. He was always respectful of others; answering with a "Ma'am or Sir." I never heard him say a mean word about anybody. That's not to say he didn't have a clever remark for those who deserved it. I know he and his predecessors are joined in Heaven, and have already had a cookout. God Bless them all.
